

An extract from a spooky version of Axe Soup

After a few seconds (it felt like hours) the wicked witch opened her dirty mouth, revealing her ugly fangs like a real-life vampire. She slurped, making a hideous sound. "Wwwwhat isss it like?" stammered a villager, who was frightened half to death.

"Ahhha! It's as good as a leg of a lion and as spicy as the skin of a snake." The villagers shuddered in dismay. For a few minutes, silence grew and grew and grew and then... "GET me some sour milk and a head of a stick insect" commanded the witch.

Luckily, one of the villagers ran quickly into his house to fetch the ingredients. Petrified of the witch, he returned moments later with the items. The witch's face now looked like a hyena as she drank the soup hungrily.

"What does it taste like?" asked one of the villagers.

"Delicately scrumptious" she replied in a boastful voice.
